Oscar Romero (1917—80) - A Eucharistic Martyr

Oscar Romero was born to a family of modest means in the small town of Ciudad Barrios in El Salvador. He went to the seminary at thirteen, studied for the priesthood in Rome, and was ordained in 1942. At work in San Miguel he was a zealous pastor with a simple lifestyle, shy and bookish. In 1970 he was made a bishop; and in 1977, he was appointed Archbishop of San Salvador. There followed three tumultuous years of ministry before his assassination.

In the 1970s, El Salvador was deeply divided between a tiny land-owning elite and the mass of landless poor. There was economic exploitation, social deprivation, and malnutrition in the countryside, on the coffee estates and sugar plantations. Killings, torture, disappearances, and political imprisonment were the routines of the military regime. The Church put itself alongside the poor in their struggle for basic rights and human dignity - and suffered persecution too.

Archbishop Romero had a deep and prayerful spiritual life and he loved the poor. His sermons were legendary. He sought to make the Word of God come alive in the lives of the poor. He preached a message of social justice and non-violent change. He became known as the voice of the voiceless. From the pulpit Romero confronted the human rights abuses, the political violence, the corrupt system of justice, the iniquitous land tenure system, and the suffering of El Salvador's poor. He was attacked and insulted for his prophetic words and witness. Death threats followed.

As civil war loomed, Romero spoke freely about his death and those around him tried to persuade him to wear a bullet-proof vest or have a bodyguard. In response he asked why the shepherd should have protection when his sheep were still prey to wolves. The threats intensified and, on March 24th 1980, Archbishop Romero was shot dead as he celebrated Mass in the hospital chapel where he lived.

The killing was carried out by a death squad linked to the country's armed forces, it was planned and financed by wealthy and powerful members of the Catholic and evangelical Christian oligarchy and their military.

Archbishop Romero had known he was going to die. On the afternoon before his death he had unexpectedly visited his confessor, Fr Azcue, saying "I want to feel clean before God." He overcame his deep-seated fears. He accepted it with great equanimity. He prepared himself and he went like a lamb to the slaughter. It was a given-life, a free gift with consequences, not a taken-life, with fearfulness of victimhood. Jesus is the Eucharistic martyr par excellence. Oscar Romero, his faithful follower, died 'Eucharistically' in the middle of the celebration of the Eucharist - an unfinished Eucharist.

Ignacio Martin-Baró, himself martyred in 1989 said eloquently "Monseñor died as he had lived: in a priestly fashion, that is to say, offering his life as a prolongation of the sacrifice of Jesus."

Oscar Romero was a martyr to the option for the poor. His ministry exemplified a faith that does justice, courageously and consistently. He evokes affection and admiration across the globe, within and beyond the Church. An ecumenical icon, Oscar Romero is an inspiration to lay Christians, bishops and clergy alike, who embrace the cause of the poor as their own - and through prayer and action, join in the quest for peace and justice today.

EASTER LILIES

We are reviving an ancient tradition which associates a lily with the resurrection of Christ and our hope in eternal Life. You are invited to buy a lily in memory of a departed loved one by placing £5 and the name of the person in an envelope and bringing it to the Parish Office or giving it to Fr James. The lilies will be used to decorate the Sanctuary during Easter, and the Vigil Mass will be offered up in their names.
